

A NOTE FROM SERT 2.0:

The Rhino Social and Environmental Responsibility Team (SERT 2.0) coalition will be focused on driving Rhino's social and environmental legacy via education, action and messaging.

This newsletter will be a space where you can keep up with updates from every one of the Rhino/Global Catalogue employee-led coalitions as well as find opportunities to engage as an individual in your community at large.

SOCIAL & ENVIRONMENTAL SPOTLIGHT:

It's Black History Month and Warner Music Group is celebrating all month long. This week we're highlighting fellow Rhino coalition The Factory as they bring us a bit of downtown history. Just up from our offices, off Alameda, is the vibrant neighborhood of Little Tokyo. Many of you may be familiar with the area or have stopped by one of the famed ramen spots in the area, but what you may not know is that Little Tokyo has lived many lives. Back in the fall of 1943, Little Tokyo was in fact a booming Black-owned business district known as Bronzeville. The three-year period marks a complicated history, read more about it here.
